

Bacherii Colorado Spruce

(Picea Pungens 'Bacherii')

Mature Height: 15'-25'

Mature Spread: 12'-15'

Growth Rate: Slow-Moderate

The Bacherii Colorado Spruce is a semi-dwarf grafted tree designed to maintain its blue color throughout the year. Its smaller size makes it suited for use as an accent tree in the landscape. Due to its slower growth rate, it is quite dense and has a full, ornamental shape. It tolerates pollution well so is an excellent choice for urban areas. It is relatively drought tolerant after becoming established in the landscape, but requires frequent watering the first two years. Like all Colorado Spruce, it is intolerant of very wet conditions. Because of its shorter height at maturity, the Bacherii Colorado Spruce can be planted closer to power lines than other evergreens. The intense blue color of this tree will stand out in any landscape and make a statement with its beauty.
