(Gymnocladus dioica
'McKBranded')

Mature Height: 40'-50'

Mature Spread: 30'-40'

Growth Rate: Slow-Moderate

Fall Color: Golden Yellow

Decaf Kentucky Coffee Tree is a male cultivar that is seedless, although it produces tiny green-white flowers in spring. It branches earlier and lower than the species, making it a beautiful tree when still small. It is an incredibly hardy tree that can tolerate heavy, compacted soils and urban conditions well. It will survive even severe drought conditions. The compound leaves emerge a rich bronze color in the spring, darkening to a deep green for the summer. It is an excellent choice for shade in large yards and city parks.
