Prairifire is an excellent choice for a showy ornamental due to being highly disease-resistant and tolerant of most soil conditions. The leaves come on maroon in the spring and change to glossy green with red undertones. Its pink-red blooms are long-lasting, and the 1/2" red fruit are kept on the tree throughout the winter for wildlife to eat. It is highly resistant to most fungal infections of crabapples, and its medium size makes it adaptable to most applications.
