Schuette's oak is a natural hybrid of Swamp White oak and Burr oak. It has the best attributes of both parent species. Like the Swamp White oak, it can tolerate heavy, wet soils better than most oaks along with a fast growth rate and upright shape. From the Burr oak, it gets hardiness and drought tolerance, along with the ability to grow well in a wide variety of soils. It grows at a faster rate than the Burr oak, with the ability to reach 15' heights within 5-6 years from seed. They are an excellent tree for large yards or park settings and will provide shade within a short time.
